MIXED GENDER POLICY

1.0. INTRODUCTION

Rugby League is a sport that provides participation opportunities for children. This policy provides detail for the provision of mixed gender participation in the same competitions and the circumstances in which participants will be excluded from participation in mixed gender competitions because the strength, stamina or physique of competitors is relevant in those competitions.

2.0. MIXED GENDER PARTICIPATION

Males and females can participate in Mixed Gender Rugby League Competitions (tackle) up to and including the calendar year (1 January to 31 December) in which they attain the age of 12 years.

3.0. EXCLUSION PROVISIONS

The attributes of the strength, stamina and physique of competitors are deemed to be relevant in the game of Rugby League. As a result, participants can be lawfully excluded from competing in Mixed Gender Competitions in the calendar year (1 January to 31 December) after the year in which they attain the age of 12 years and subsequent calendar years thereafter.

These exclusion provisions comply with section 42 of the Sexual Discrimination Act 1984 (Cth).
